YALE AND HARVARD CREWS ARE READY.

New London Is Filling With Visitors Come to See the Boat Race.

YALE MEN ARE CONFIDENT.

Harvard Oarsmen Handicapped by the Loss of Their Captain-Both Eights Are Considered Very Fast.

HARVARD PROSPECTS.

HARVARD PROSPECTS.

I am hardly in a position to say much about the crew. You see I have only just been appointed captain this week. Of course we miss Higginson sorely, but Harding is doing very well. The crew is not together as much as it would have been had Higginson remained with us. But we are in better shape than I thought we would be on Monday. I cannot venture any predictions, for we have not yet been over the course, but I think it safe to say that we shall make a good fight. That is about all I can promise.

Captain of Harvard Crew.

This talk about Harvard being as well off with Harding as she was with Higginson is all wrong. If Harding were the best stroke in the world the crew would not be as well off, because the men could not get together. The men have done well, but the nervous strain and the necessity of working them more this week than we should have done has hurt our chances. I think the eight will put up a fast race, but I can venture no predictions. I have not seen Yale row of late.

E. C. STORROW.

Head Coach, Harvard.

YALE EXPECTS HARD RACE. Yale is fully slive to the fact that Harvard will give us a tug-of-war. We are aware of the fact that Harvard hus a fast and a strong crew. I cannot see that the recent accident in the Harvard boat the recent accident in the Harvard boat has resulted in cutting down the speed of the Harvard boat at all. I do not think that anybody was as sorry for the accident as we were at Yale. I am confident that both crews will row the hardest kind of a race.

DOCTOR F. E. GALLAUDET. Hend Coach of Yale,

The members of the Yale crew are in capital condition and spirits and we are ready for the word to start. We tried a few racing starts to-day and every man was strong and lively. We expect a hard race to-morrow.

Captain Yale Crew.

New London, Conn., June 27 .- College colors and college cries have brought New London to its annual awakening. All day long crowds have been rolling out through the Union Station, and to-night they continue to come. Enthusiasm was never higher, though, strange to say, it has not exhibited itself in the form of betting. In easons past the aquatic battle between Yale and Harvard has been an event upon the result of which great sums have de-pended. There has been no betting fever this year, though the spirit of rivalry is in no manner diminished.

Early in the day all of the New London notels hung out signs announcing "standing room only." Even cots in hallways have commanded high prices. Yale's blue is probably the predominant color, though the bright crimson of Harvard is seen on every hand. Yale's confidence runs high, owing to the accident to Harvard's captain, and the consense of enjoy, influenced semewher consensus of opinion, influenced somewhat by the swelling chorus of praise for "old Ell's sons," is that Harvard must be satisfied with second honors. Many there are, however, who refuse to accept this. They assert that Table authorizem will leaden as the crews near the finishing line.

While it would seem impossible to in-crease the crowd that to-night marches and countermarches, waving flags and singing tuneful college songs, it is known that many of the admirers of the different crews

The crews-and this year there are six of them-a 'varsity, a freshmen and a four-car from each college-have finished their training, after many weeks of tedious, persevering work. Naturally, with Harvard's captain, who was the stroke and the best oar, out of the boat, reclining on a couch at Red Top with an injured ankle, there is to-night at the Yale quarters the utmost confidence in the ability of the New Haven crew to pull out a victory to-morrow in the big four-mile race between the 'varsity

Harvard's present 'varsity eight, notwithstanding the recent changes on account of the injury to the captain, is not looked upon as a weak eight by many, and there is a quiet feeling expressed that the Cambridge crew still has a splendid chance of winning the big race to-morrow. All the Yale crews are full of confidence and determined to win all three races.

Harvard stock took an upward jump late to-night. It leaked out that in a haif-mile stretch Tuesday evening the newly-organized Harvard crew made the distance in 2:19, which is quite as fast as Higginson ever made the boat travel.

A public exhibition of their gait this evening in a short brush with the Harvard freshmen has, however, been chiefly instrumental in booming their stock. The 'varsity gave the freshmen a start of a boat's length and caught them within a third of a mile.
To be sure no very high hopes are based on the lower classmen from Cambridge against the youngsters from New Haven, still such a feat as the 'varsity performed at their expense is well calculated to inspire respect for the 'varsity.

In the upper and lower harbors there are acores of floating craft of every description and at sunset to-night a number of sailing yachts could be seen coming through Long Island and Fisher's Island sounds to join the large fleet at anchor there.

Last Day's Work. withstanding the recent changes on account

Last Day's Work.

At the training quarters the work has been very light to-day. The coaches merely put the men through a course of practice starts and gave the oarsmen some final advice in their watermanship in general. A thunderstorm prevailed for a few minutes this evening before the crews went on the river, and a fresh breeze blew up stream.

on the river, and a fresh breeze blew up stream.

The Yale crews started out at 6 o'clock and went up the river above the boathouse. Gallaudet and Brown, the conches, remained at the quarters and left the coaching to the coaxwains.

Harvard's crews were sent up and down the course to-night in quarter-mile stretches. The crew practiced starts together. Storrow and Goodrich, the coaches, corrected the individual faults on the bow of the launch. There have been no changes in any of the boats to-day, and the practice this evening will be the last.

At the Yale and Harvard quarters there were numerous visitors. All keenly watched the crews on the river.

Every member of the Yale crews will wear to-morrow, previous to the races, a Connecto-morrow, previous to the races, a Connecticut State flag button for luck. The fad set by the Yale crews will probably be taken up by followers and supporters of Yale to-captain Higginson, who was compelled to Captain Higginson, who was compelled to give up his seat at stroke in the Harvard shell, is still at Red Top, and will remain until the races are rowed. He spends the day on the porch and invariably compliments the crews for their good work when they return to quarters.

Referee Metckieham, who has been chosen by the managers of the Yale and Harvard navies to referee the races, arrived to-day.

Secretary of War Root, accompanied by Professor Townsend of New Haven, is ex-pected to view the races from the steam yacht Aquilo.

All the observation cars were hauled out to-night and will be ready for the crowd

A. C. Bradbury, Formerly of St. Louis, Roled Off in San Francisco.

According to the San Francisco Chronicle. A. C. Bradbury, a trainer of coursing sreyhounds, quite well known in St. Louis, has been ruled off the coursing sward for life for "doping." or stimulating, a greyhound to supercanine exertion by injecting into his veins a powerful potion, the composite parts of which are not known save to Picabury and a solect coterie.

The act was done at San Francisco, where coursing is quite as much of a sport, or rather a gumbling device, as is horse racing. The dog was named Merchess. That is the treatment the cursing authorities gave Bradbury.

Bradbury, who is an Englishman, resided in St. Louis from 150s to 150s, and trained the kennel of greyhounds owned by Mr. C. A. Robinson of Webster Groves.
